

Improving Child & Family Outcomes Where a Parent has an Intellectual Disability

The new 10-year national policy blueprint for child safety, the National Framework for Protecting Australian Children (2022-32) recognises children and parents with disability for the first time, and the Royal Commission into Violence, Abuse, Neglect and Exploitation of People with Disability has held sessions focused on parents with intellectual disability. It is critical that we do not waste any more time in putting these families front and centre on the national agenda!

This ASID webinar will address three key areas of concern relating to parents with an intellectual disability:

1. How to get a clear picture of who they are what issues they face in an Australian context
2. How to ensure they are not discriminated against in child protection practices
3. How to make sure services are accessible and acceptable to these parents

We will be joined by Dr Susan Collings, Dr Catherine Wade and Dr Margaret Spencer as they discuss this topic in depth.

Thursday 26 May 12 - 2PM (AEST)

Cost:

Free for ASID Members
$25 for non-members

Thank you to a generous sponsor who has agreed to fund ten registrations to this webinar for either students or Centerlink recipients,. Please contact the ASID Office to apply, secretariat@asid.asn.au

Visit asid.asn.au to register