

Jack Kelly, Justine O'Neill, Mary-Ann Donovan, Philippa Carnemolla, Clara Goossens and Edie Ballantyne

CDS

Centre for

Disability

Studies

Jack Kelly, Justine O'Neill, Mary-Ann Donovan, Phillipa Carnemolla, Clara Goossens and Edie Ballantyne

The Inclusion Library

The Inclusion Library is a website.

It is like a library online.

We want the Inclusion Library to help people find information that

- Includes people with intellectual disability

- Shows people how to include others

It has information from

- Australia

- Around the world

It has

- Videos

- Written information

- Information you can listen to

3 groups are working on the Inclusion Library.

They are

- Centre for Disability Studies

- Council for Intellectual Disability

- University of Technology Sydney

We will show you the kind of information we want to share because we think it is good.

Sharing resources to support the inclusion of people with intellectual disability.

 Search our resource library

Painting by: Matt Caloundra: Flowers

Showing results 1-5 of 5

BROWSE BY

Topic

- Education
- Employment
- Health And Well-Being
- Human Rights
- Inclusion
- Local Government
- National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS)

Aine Healy | Catherine Donnelley | Jack Kelly | Phillippa Carnemolla

Practical Ways to Include People with Intellectual Disability

This poster is designed for Local Councils to develop practical ideas about inclusion.

Topic

Inclusion | Local Government

Toolkits and factsheets

Manage your money: Info Guide 2020

This is an Easy Read resource designed as an info guide about how to manage money. It has been created by the Council for Intellectual Disability.

Centre for Disability Studies | Report

Beyond Careers Evaluation Report – Easy Read (Australia)

A co-designed report into the Uni 2 Beyond Career Adviser written in Easy Read English.

Topic

Employment

Today we will ask everyone what you think about the Inclusion Library and what sorts of things should be in it.