

ASID Tasmania support worker conference

Meeting of minds in the middle

The Australasian Society for Intellectual Disability (ASID) Tasmania is organising a one day conference for support workers.

We have an exciting program of speakers and topics, including a keynote address by Professor Keith McVilly on Behaviour Support – refocusing our attention and resources on achieving what we have long known is the right thing to do and workshops on Active Support, Practice Leadership, Psychosocial Disability and Sexuality with more topics to be confirmed.

We recognise that support workers do important work in sometimes difficult circumstances. This conference is an opportunity to come together to learn, connect and talk about how to better support people with disabilities.
